THEY HAVE AGREED TO DISAGREE ON THIS SUBJECT:

The Conference Proved a Total Failure as Far as a Settlement of This Vexed Question is Concerned-Proceedings of the Senate and House-Other News.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.-There was no surprise in diplomatic circles in Washington when it was learned that the fishery commissioners acting on the part of Canada and the United States had agreed to disagree. The sessions have been going on in the state department in this city for the past month. The last session was held on Saturday. The difference between the two governments didn't seem so irreconcilable as the representatives tried to make out.

Canada's most active representative was Sir Charles Tupper, a conservative politician, who is just out of a feverish political contest where the fishery dispute was the principal feature, and who is therefore not regarded as so judicial a diplomate as the occasion demands. Sir Charles' prompter and chief reliance has been George E. Foster, minister of fisheries, who has been in this country watching Canada's interests and who has acted on the plan to obtain every thing for Canada and to give nothing to America. Sir Joseph Chamberlain and the British minister, Mr. West, have represented Great Britain nominally.

The representatives of the United States have been Secretary of State Bayard, William L. Putnam, of Maine, and Professor Ainsworth, of Michigan. Secretary Bayard's proposals, as assumed in the correspondence that has passed between him and Minister Phelps and the British minister of foreign affairs, were that, in view of all the circumstances and according to the comity of nations, our vessels were entitled to enter Canadian ports with the same freedom that Canadian vessels were enabled to enter our ports. While not denying the existence of the famous treaty of 1810, the United States claimed that its most stringent and disagreeable features were nullified by legislation and by maritime reciprocity. Canada, on the other hand, adhered rigidly and unwaveringly to the treaty of 1810 in its original state, without modification or alteration. The United States claimed the three mile limit, three miles from the shore line, and nothing else, while Canada claimed that the limit neant three miles from an imaginary line running from point to point.

In referring to the breakup of the commission Congressman Nelson Dingley, of Maine, said last night: "It has been no secret that the commissioners were unable to agree. On the three mile limit I know that Sir Charles Tupper said no to our proposal. Mr. Bayard proposed that as a treaty. Sir Charles Tupper responded that according to the treaty of 1818 he did make a proposal to sell us the right to fish in Canadian waters, and to let our fishing vessels enter their ports, providing we did certain things. Canada's proposal on one side and Mr. Bayard's on the other, have been bulling each other ever since the commission began to sit. We took the ground that if we, with 60,000,000 people, allowed Canada with 8,000,000 to enter our ports Canada should not complain. Canada is after a reciprocity treaty, and, in adjusting the concession from us, but our commissioners have said that this latter is a matter not to be considered until after the fishery affairs are out of the way. Our commissioners have said in so many words: 'We don't propose to give you what we ought to have by the comity of nations.' On this the Canadian commissioners have gone home to consult their authorities.'

"What will be the upshot?" "It is clear that unless Canada changes her position there can be no settlement,'

'Do you look for any great delay?" "No. The commissioners will come together again in January. So far as we are concerned the question is whether we are to have commercial privileges. It is possible that the Canadian commissioners will return next month in a different frame of mind. You must understand that we do not base our position on the treaty of 1818. Then no vessel had a right to enter a foreign port. But times have changed since then. Legislation has softened the rigorous positions of treaties in force then. Nations have advanced in comity relationship."

As the matter stands the Canadian commissioners have gone home to talk it over with Sir John Macdonald, and the chances of reaching an amicable adjustment are in the remote future.

> Senator Cullom's Postal Telegraph Bill. WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. - The bill introduced in the senate to-day by Mr. Cullom, for the establishment and operation of a United States Postal Telegraph, provides for ten trunk lines of telegraph, embracing all the cities of the states and territories. The bill provides that the lines shall be constructed by the army engineer corps, under the direction of the secretary of war, on iron poles, with capacity for twelve wires, and shall, when completed, be transferred to the control of the postmaster general. The secretary of war, shall, if he deem it expedient, take possession of lines now used for military purposes, as a portion of this federal telegraph system.

The rates to be charged are ten cents for twenty words under five hundred miles, and five cents additional for each additional ten words; and for distances greater than 500 miles an additional rate of five cents for each 250 miles.

Press night rules are to be thirty-five cents per hundred words, and day rate seventy-five cents per hundred words. The office of director general of telegraph is created, the appointment to be made as is that of an assistant postmaster general with like salary. The appointee must be a practical telegraph man, of at least ten years' experience. The postmaster general will report to congress the best methods of organization at the beginning of the first session of congress after the passage of this act. Four million dollars is appropriated for the purposes of the measure.

An American Citizen Tortured.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.-The state department is investigating an inhuman outrage perpetrated by Spanish officials on the West Indian island of Porto Rico, 500 miles southeast of Florida, on Richard Nadal, a native of Poto Rico, but a naturalized citizen of the United States. He is a graduate of the Rensselaer Polytechnic institute at Troy, N. Y., but since 1873 he has been a resident at Mayagnez, Porto Rico, in business with his brother in the shipping and commission business.

October 22 he and his brother were arrested and charged with comspiring to incite a revolution. He was hung up by his arms to a post by a small steel chain. toes could barely touch the floor. The chain sunk into the flesh of his arms. Four hours and a half he hung there, to make him confess. One arm is paralyzed.

Taken down, he refused to confess, and was strung up again, until overcome by torture, and fearing death, he made a false confession against Jose Gonzales, who had escaped from captivity. Gonzales was re-captured and tortured till he attempted suicide with his pocket knife. Nadal protested during the torture that he was a United States citizen, but the scoffing reply was that his case was so much the worse.

November 11 Spain recalled Capt. Gen. Palaccio, the governor of the island, and Nadal escaped to the United States.

His statement was to-day submitted to Secretary Bayard.

FUEL FAMINE IN KANSAS.

Coal Not to Be Had at Any Price-The Railroads Charged With Partiality.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Dec. 14. - Deputy United States Marshal Charles Currier, who has traveled much about the western part of the state during the past two weeks, says that the condition of people so far as fuel is concerned is truly pitiable. Coal is not to be obtained at any price, and many cases of actual suffering were reported everywhere he went. The last cold wave exhausted what little supply they had, and should another follow soon, none can estimate the misery that will ensue, and possibly

In a majority of cases where there is such a scarcity of coal it is partially the fault of the railroad companies and the dealers. The latter did not order coal until late in the fall. Then the mines were not of sufficient capacity to supply the orders. The railroad companies saw that they would be cut short if all the dealers were supplied, and by one pretext and another failed to deliver, coal to the dealers, but put such restrictions a . 1 rates upon it that the mines were compelled to furnish them in advance. Their supply is not limited, but they have hoarded it up to the detriment and suffering of thousands of people who have settled on the prairies of western and southern

MR. HARPER AS A CONVICT

SAFELY LANDED WITHIN THE PENI-TENTIARY WALLS.

His Trip to Columbus and How He Received His Prison Garb of Stripes-He Wants a Soft Job and Will Propably Get It-Hopkins' Case Called in Court.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 14.-Mr. Harper left Cincinnati at 4:05 p. m., in the palace car "Hennis," and reached Columbus, via the Midland railroad route, shortly after 8 p. m. There, garbed as a felon, he is doing penance for his mideeds behind the grim walls of Ohio's state prison. He was guarded on his ten-year trip to Columbus by United States Deputy Marshals Kiersted and Costello. Mrs. Harper, Miss Matthews, his sister-in-law; Mr. Matthews, his father-inlaw, and Harry Watters, Harpers late bookkeeper, accompanied the party. At the various stopping places along the route crowds gathered to get a glimpse of the famous prisoner.

The party ate supper in the station dining room at Columbus, and were afterward driven in carriages to the penitentiary. Marshal Costello introduced Harper to Warden Cotlin. The warden said: "Mr. Harper, have you come to stay with us for awhile?" To which Harper replied: "Yes, I am sorry to say that I have." Harper then asked for a few minutes private conversation with the warden, which was granted, they retiring to an adjoining room. Harper asked about the prison rules, and what work he would be expected to do.

"What can you do? asked the warden. "Well, I don't know," said Harper, "but my friends asked me to try and secure a clerkship.

"Are you an experienced bookkeeper?" "No."

"Then I don't know what I will put you at," said the warden.

Mrs. Harper, Miss Matthews and Mr. Matthews were then admitted and affecting farewells were taken. Mrs. Harper was almost overcome with anguish.

Harper was then taken to the guard room and searched. He winced visibly during this operation and apparently keenly felt his degredation. All letters and papers found on his person, his handsome gold watch and his purse, containing $157.75, were turned over to the warden. The prisoner was then conducted to his cell, range 1, cell No. 11. He looked at it with a grimace and said:

"It is awful small." "Yes," said the captain, "but it is one of the largest in the building."

The cell is seven by nine feet. Harper's serial number will be 19,217. He will probably be put to work in the library or sec-retary's office. He will receive a reduction of nine hundred days from his sentence if he behaves well. Mrs. Harper, Miss Matthews and Mr. Matthews called at the penitentiary this morning, and held a lengthy consultation with Harper. The consultation was held in the private office of the warden, where outsiders are not admitted. When the prison officials came to put Harper in stripes it was found that no suit on hand was large enough to fit him, and so his wife and sister-in-law set voluntarily to work to make one for him out of the dark gray cloth with broad stripes used for the suits of second grade prisoners. Under the terms of his sentence Harper is not obliged to work, but he expressed a desire to be kept busy. Col. A. G. Patton, who has a hollowware contract in the penitentiary, has made application for Harper's services, and if he is assigned to him will be made chief clerk. mittee on privileges and elections, after Col. Patton is an old friend of Harper, and says that his services in the iron business will be valuable. He offers $1 per day for Harper's services, while the regular pay is but seventy-five cents. Warden Coffin refuses to make the assignment unless Harper will, in writing, make the request, and will waive all questions that may arise. The reason for taking this course is that the United States refuses to permit its prisoners to work on contracts of any kind. The probabilities are that Harper will be assigned to this contract, not withstanding it is regarded as the hardest in the peniten-

Trial of Benjamin Hopkins.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 14.—The government wastes no time. The echoes of the Harper trial have scarcely died away, and to-day Benjamin E. Hopkins, assistant cashier of the bursted bank of which Harper was vice president, comes into court for trial. Hopkins looked pale and feeble as he came before Judge Sage, accompanied by his son Charley, Mr. and Mrs. O'Keefe, and Mrs. Nelson. His counsel, Bateman, Harper & Bailey, came into court a few minutes be-

Judge Sage disposed of the demurrers to the indictment. The demurrers to counts 43, 45, 46, 47 and 48 were sustained. This leaves forty-two counts upon which the accused will be tried. The counts relate to misappropriation and misapplication of the moneys, funds and credits of the Fidelity bank, and also to false entries made thereabout.

Hopkins arose to plead to the indict-

Do you waive the reading of the indictment?" said Prosecutor Bruce. "I do," said Hopkins.

"Mr. Hopkins, you are charged with vio-lating section 5209 of the revised statutes of the United States relating to United States banking laws. Are you guilty or not

"Not guilty," said Hopkins. The call of the names for the venire then proceeded.

A Man Killed for Slapping a Bad Boy-An Editor Shot.

PINEVILLE, Ky., Dec. 14.—As S. W. Begley was waiking down the street Monday morning a small boy named Ebb Renfroe jumped before him and snapped a tov pistol in his face. Begley threw out his hands and pushed the boy off the sidewalk, when he picked up a rock and struck Begley. Begley pushed or slapped him again, when he ran off to where his father, T. R. Renfroe, lived. His father saw him crying, and asked the reason, and was told that Begley had knocked him down for nothing. This made Renfroe furious, and he started up the street, saying that he would kill any man who would knock his children around.

Several persons expostulated with him, but to no avail. He went direct to Begley's house, and was told by Begley that he did not strike his boy. Renfroe then started off and said: "I will investigate this matter." He returned later, however, and in a quarrel which ensued shot Begley. The bullet took effect in the right side of the face, near the ear, and entered the brain. Begley fell like a beef, and his blood and brains spattered over the sidewalk. Begley was carried to his home next door, where he died in 'a few hours. Begley has four brothers who live here, and all of them are fighting men.

An Editor Shot.

New IBERIA, La., Dec. 14.-This town was the scene of considerable excitement Sunday, caused by a difficulty between W. B. Merchant, president of the Merchants' Exchange bank, and formerly postmaster at New Orleans, and J. B. Lawton, editor of the New Iberia Enterprise. A short time after the Pattersonville riot, Merchant wrote an article for a Chicago paper giving his views of the trouble, and of the condition of the laborers in this section. This article Lawton reproduced in the Enterprise, and a newspaper controversy of considerable bitterness followed. The last article from Merchant appeared Saturday.

Sunday morning, as Lawton was standing in the doorway with several others, Merchant passed by. Lawton advanced toward him for the purpose of explanation. Before he spoke Merchant fired at him, the ball striking him in the chest and inflicting a slight wound. Lawton had no weapon. After firing Merchant ran down the street, and meeting the sheriff, surrendered. He was shortly afterward released on bail. Merchant gives as an excuse for the shooting that he thought Lawton intended to strike him with the cane he carried.

The Amador-Lilla Mine.

The Amador Mine in Poughkeepsie Gulch, Ouray, Colorado, was purchased by the Amador-Lilla Mining Company, of East St. Louis, Ill., last week, and one of the best properties in that section has again fallen into St. Louis hands. The Amador has been worked continuously for two years by the vendors and has shown pay ore (bismuth silver) of very high grade from the very surface, a shipment made at only 50 feet from the surface running 154 ounces to the ton. The workings now in the lower level, 320 feet long and at a depth of about 200 feet, show a fine streak of ore about one foot in width, averaging 206 ounces in silver, and by concentration tests by jigging, shows a value of at least 400 ounces to the ton of concentrates of two tons into one. A good jig hand will jig five tons a day and the capacity of the crusher and rolls run by water power at the mine will be fifty tons a day of ore crushed and ready for the jigs. It is proposed to jig all the ore and avoid thus the expense of hand sorting. The tests just made of the ore in the upper workings give return of ore in the upper workings give return of 1821 ounces of silver per ton of the first class and 882 ounces of the second class ore, or a value in concentrates of 354 ounces of the second going four tons into one and 363 ounces of the first class going two tons into one-these results obtained from jig tests made before the machinery was placed on the mine. It is estimated that ten tons a day will be treated at the mine to commence with as soon as the machinery is running. The Lilla veins intersecting the Amador in her present workings show magnificent bismuth silver ore at her crossing in the Amador No 1 level and is the extension of the famous Saxon vein from the surface workings of which $65,000 was extracted at a depth in all of less than 100 feet. The Saxon is under lease and bond to the vendors of the "Amador." The Lilla vein is now being opened from the Amador level No. 2 at a depth of 123 feet. None of the ore reserves have been touched in "The Amador," but the ground is ready for stoping in both levels.

It is proposed to purchase the "Silver Star" the extension northwesterly of "The Amador" vein and incorporate the property with "The Amador-Lilla," making as fine a group of claims as can be found in the country.—Ouray (Col.) Solid Muldoon.

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND

THE ONE SUBJECT IN THE NEXT BRITISH PARLIAMET T.

Lord Mayor Sullivan and Mr. O'Brien's Cases Will Be the Theme For Half the Speeches During the Next Session-New French Cabinet-Other Foreign News.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Although the opening of the next session of parliament is not sufficiently close at hand to be reckoned among the events of the near future there is still a great deal of activity observable among the parties on either side of the line drawn by the question of Home Rule for Ireland in the matter of preparation for the renewal of hostilities. Representatives of both parties are making frequent quiet trips to Ireland for the purpose of obtaining information that will stand the test of parliamentary discussion as to the exact condition of affairs with regard to the working of the crimes act, and the next four or five weeks will probably witness a still greater number of such excursions. The cases of Lord Mayer Sullivan and Mr. O'Brien will undoubtedly fur nish material for half the speeches that will be delivered during the consideration of whatever Irish business may come up next session, and as the gentlemen themselves will be in their seats, provided they are not again arrested and locked up for some new offense, they will presumably be astonished to hear how disreputable, ruffianly and altogether vicious they are regarded by the one portion of their colleagues and how highly they are esteemed as self-sacrificing patriots and pure minded men by the other.

While the government is engaged in prosecuting, and, in some instances, persecuting Irish members of the house of commons, it is noteworthy that evictions are heard of. It is not because there are no evictions, for the work of the process server and the bailiff goes on almost unceasingly, but because the embarrassments, hardships and painful experiences of the humble peasant follower are lost sight of in the outery that is raised against the humiliation and discomfort visited upon the leader. There is another reason, too, which is the fact that the evicted tenant offers slight, if any, resistance to his ejectors in the absence of the stirring words of one in whom he rests implicit confidence, encouraging him to defy and exert every effort to thwart his oppres-

The experience of the home rule leaders already in jail and the fact that warrants have issued for a large number of others, has had a strong deterrent effect upon many of the local heads of the league, who formally attended scenes of evictions and labored assiduously to encourage the tenants, while placing every possible obstacle in the way of the bailiffs and the police. Their opinions as to the justice or injustice of the protections have undergone no change, but stuff exports reached $148,019.641, against ions as to the justice or injustice of the prothey have lately developed an enormous amount of discretion, in contemplating the prospect of yawning jails and enforced hard labor for the crown, which has robbed the evictions of their most exciting features. When the true leaders return to their work, and they most certainly will, they will find their old assistants ready to resume their obstructive practices, but until that time the voice of the local leader will be stilled and his hand, so oft uplifted to strike down a bailiff, inert.

Michael Davitt Interviewed.

LONDON, Dec. 14. - Warrants are out for the arrest of Messrs. T. Healy, M. P.: John Dillon, M. P., and T. P. Gill, M. P. The latter has been in charge of United Ireland during Mr. O'Brien's imprisonment. Mr. Gill has escaped and will remain under cover until Mr. O'Brien has finished his term, which expires on Christmas Eve.

Michael Davitt, who has been in London for the last few days, during the course of an interview with a reporter last night, remarked, in answer to the question as to whether he expected to be arrested, that he fully expects to spend his Christmas in the cell of some Irish jail, and believes that John Dillon and Timothy Healy would probably share the same fate. The fight would, however, despite this, be carried on vigorously by the people, even if the pris-ons were crowded with the leaders of the movement.

"Are the people of Ireland at all depressed at the present aspect of affairs?" "Well," replied Mr. Davitt, "the country is fully aware of the gravity of the situation, and of the ordeal through which it will have to pass. But it is not at all afraid. The nation has passed through periods when the outlook was never darker and less hopeful, and it believes that it has reached the beginning of the end of one of the most sad and prolonged struggles for liberty passed through by any country in Europe. Lord Salisbury and his government have evidently resolved, as far as possible, to employ all the resources of despotism and to crush the nation; but they seem to overlook the fact that they are dealing with a race which has never yet known when it was beaten.'

In answer to questions with regard to the dispute with the Gaelic Athletic association, he said that he believed the matter had been amicably settled. The archbishop of Cashel, Dr. Crake, and himself had done their utmost to bring about this satifactory result, and he was happy to say with complete success. People were fully alive to the importance of maintaining an unbroken front and of avoiding anything in the nature of disunion; and although there were some who might disapprove of certain details of policy, they agreed that the present juncture was not an opportune time for the opening of controversies or for the raising of difficulties. They were therefore at present maintaining an attitude of firmness and patience, firmly believing that such matters would be certain to be righted by and by.

"You expressed your disapproval of the policy of avoiding arrest under the coercion act in your most recent speech," said the correspondent. "Yes," said Mr. Davitt, "it was with very great regret that I felt compelled to express my disapproval of a policy which I believed would be misunderstood out of Ireland. I felt it to be my public duty, after the thing had gone a certain length, to state so publicly in a speech at Stepaside. and that opinion I still hold, and nothing which has been since written or spoken on the subject has altered my views on the matter. If the Tory government desire to fill the Irish prisons, they, of course, can do so. That policy has been tried before without avail, and will be found to be equally fraitless now."
